THE DEMOCRATIC BANQUET.

Democracy's banquet at the Commercial club Wednesday night furnished plenty of evidence that the party was never in better fighting trim in this state or more likely to grow in aggressive fighting ability. Even the most pessimistic observer, knowing the result of the recent election would have been compelled to admit that the men who gathered around the banquet table were not only cheerful over the political outlook, but what is more unusual for the vanquished, were in a jubilant frame of mind.

The reason for this jubilation developed from the first of the speeches. The speakers and guests, who felt that the defeat of November had paved the way for the removal of the Smoot machine and its methods from Utah politics, and the ultimate triumph of the Democratic party on the lines laid down by the reconvened convention of ten years ago which denounced church influence of any kind in political affairs.

The scoring given Smoot for his interference in the Salt Lake election as well as for the part he has taken in state politics, met with the most enthusiastic approval and applause. There was no mistaking the sentiment of the gathering on the subject of Smoot and his machine; nor was there any doubt as to the feeling on the whole problem of bosses, church or otherwise, in Utah politics, indeed, no more outspoken deliverances have been heard in this state in any gathering since the reconvened convention so often referred to by the speakers.

Looking to the future, the belief in Democratic victory at the fall election of next year was unanimous, and the reasons given for this belief most convincing. The disruption of the Republican party by the desertion of Republicans to the "American" ranks; the hopeless demoralization of the Smoot machine by the outcome of the city election; the evidence of corruption in the administration of county affairs; the growing impatience of the people with bosses and bossism—all these were advanced as sound reasons for the conviction that the next county election will see the Democracy again in control of the county and well started on its way to victory in the state at large.

If enthusiasm and straightforwardness of speech are measures of strength, the banquet did immeasurable good in solidifying the Democratic party. It brought to the fore the younger element, and it afforded an opportunity for "getting together" such as must result in a closer, more effective organization in the ranks. Without a single jarring note, it was remarkable for its unanimity of opinion, its clear definition of the party's position on the chief issues in the state, and its note of good cheer for the future of Utah's Democracy. The men who conceived the idea of the banquet, and carried it to such triumphant success deserve the thanks of every Democrat in the state.

McCALL MUST GO.

The report published in yesterday's morning papers that John A. McCall would resign the presidency of the New York Life Insurance company and that he would be accompanied into private life by Vice President Perkins, is denied by Mr. McCall as far as he himself is concerned. Mr. McCall declines to follow the example set by Mr. Alexander and Mr. Hyde of the Equitable, an example followed recently by Mr. McCurdy of the Mutual.

Nevertheless, the days of John A. McCall as the active head of the New York Life would seem to be numbered. It is not at all probable that he will last beyond the next annual meeting and election of trustees, scheduled for April. While it must be admitted that Mr. McCall has done nothing actually unlawful in his management of the New York Life it has been demonstrated pretty clearly that he has shaved uncomfortably close to the line—from the standpoint of the policy holders. Nobody can say that he has actually misappropriated the funds of the policy holders, but the days of his usefulness to the company are past.

The public's confidence in Mr. McCall has been so badly shaken and shattered that it can never be restored. His every act, no matter how honest, in the future, no matter how carefully planned for the best interests of the corporation, will be viewed with suspicion and accepted, if at all, with distrust, with the feeling that there is more in it for McCall than appears on the surface. If the New York Life is to continue the undoubtedly good work it has, generally speaking, done during its existence, it must get rid of McCall.

The strange feature about it all is that McCall himself doesn't seem to appreciate the significance of the situation.

A man of ordinarily delicate sensibilities would have said, long ago: "It is quite apparent that from this time forward I must be a hindrance rather than a help to the company. Let me resign and let a man in whom the public has confidence be selected to fill my place." But McCall refuses to do this. He deliberately blinds himself to the ethics of the situation, and we are forced to the conclusion that the hope of future profit, the fear that in no other business could he command anything like as large an income as he derives from the New York Life, impel him to hang on until the toe of the boot that is looming up in the background is actually applied.

SALT LAKE'S HEALTH.

Those who are booming Salt Lake City as a place of residence and investment would do well to include in their arguments, written and oral, something about the city's healthfulness. Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the fact that in the matter of public health Salt Lake City stands at the head of the civic procession. No city of approximately the size of this can show such favorable health statistics, nor is so nearly free from the diseases that ordinarily afflict mankind.

During the month of November the death rate was only .55 per thousand, and for the first eleven months of 1905 it was .624. Very few cities can show as low a death rate. The average, for those of the size of Salt Lake, is from .84 to .865. It is not surprising that our mortality percentage is so low. There is no more healthful climate anywhere than in Salt Lake City. The air is pure and dry, Colorado alone excepted, we have more bright, sunny days than any other state in the union.

Salt Lake's sewer system, already quite extensive, is being rapidly enlarged. During the administration of Mayor Morris, now closing, several miles of new sewers have been dug, and it is probable that the work will be carried forward as rapidly as possible until every residence in the city can establish sewer connections.

As far as cleanliness a conservator of the public health Salt Lake City is in good shape. Thanks to the diligence of recent health officers the citizens have been aroused to the necessity for keeping their premises clean, and the result has been a gratifying decrease in the number of infectious and contagious diseases.

It must be confessed that during the late summer and early fall months typhoid fever is prevalent to some extent. But what we would regard almost as an epidemic of typhoid would hardly be noticed in other cities of our class. Still, there is no necessity for any typhoid fever at all here. It is an absolutely preventable disease. Our water supply is far purer than the water in most cities, but there are seasons when the water should be boiled in order to make assurance doubly sure.

On the whole Salt Lake has every reason to be gratified at their health conditions. They should be impressed upon all visitors and intending citizens.

WATTERSON FOR SENATOR.

There is much newspaper talk going the rounds in favor of Henry Watterson, the esteemed editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, for senator from the good old state of Kentucky. Mr. Watterson has said repeatedly that he is not an aspirant for political honors, that he is not a candidate for the senatorship, and if we mistake not, that he would not accept the office if it were tendered to him on a silver platter. Still, Mr. Watterson might be persuaded.

And it is high time that Kentucky sent a man of his calibre to the senate. The state would be honored more than the Louisville editor by his selection. Not since Beck's day has a man of Watterson's calibre represented Kentucky in the upper house of congress. Always an interesting figure in journalism, he would be an even more interesting and picturesque figure in the senate.

Not so very long ago Mr. Watterson spoke of the "gray wolves of the senate." How would he like to see him among them? He would be no lamb for them to slaughter. Rather would he stand up to them and give battle so dogmatically that wolf fear would fly in every direction. We are decidedly for Watterson for United States senator from Kentucky.

Few men who have lived in Utah were better known or more highly esteemed than Max Warmbath, who died in Los Angeles last Sunday. Mr. Warmbath had lived in the west for nearly forty years, the greater part of the time having been spent in Utah. His passing will cause regret among the many hundreds who knew and liked him, and all of them will join in the hope that the long rest that he has so well earned will be sweet.

Pauling Markham, who will be remembered by the "Johnnies" of another generation as one of the most beautiful women in face and figure of her time, is ill in New York. And as proof that chorus ladies never grow old it may be stated that, although in years she is more than sixty, Miss Markham is troubled with that complaint of childhood known as measles.

P. Buncue-Varilla, the Panama canal man who got a large share of the proceeds from the sale of the strip to this government, says we ought to dig a canal 500 feet wide and forty-five feet deep. Go 'way, P. Buncue-Varilla. You've cost us enough money now.

If one-tenth of the stories told about the atrocities committed and encouraged by General Sakharoff are true he thoroughly deserved to be assassinated.

Instead of making a target out of the Constitution Mr. Bonaparte seems to have succeeded in making a target out of himself.

Japan, we are told, is showing a disposition to monopolize all the good things in Manchuria. Well, no nation has a better right.

Society.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Palmer and Arthur Dale, known to the place last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Palmer, on First street. The marriage service was read by Rev. Elmer L. Goshen at 8:15, in the presence of the relatives and a few of the close friends of the young people. During the service Miss Katharine Gros played Le-mare's "Andantino," and as the benediction was pronounced the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin. Following the wedding a buffet supper was served at which some sixty were present. The friends who assisted both in the dining room and at the punch bowl were Miss Ruby Knowlton, Miss Nan Knowlton, Miss Sylvia Cohn, Miss Mary Parker, Miss Bessie Pike, Miss Lucile McLehland, Miss Winifred Hardy, Miss Lyle Wimmer and Miss Gene Holmes.

The bridal party stood in the drawing room, which was decorated with palms and ferns and decorated with white carnations and sweet clysmum. In the library and dining room the Christmas decorations in red and green were carried out. The bride wore a gown of white silk mulle, with a bertha of real lace, and carried a shower of white bride's roses. A cluster of the orange blossoms worn by her mother at her wedding was fastened in her hair. Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton will be at home after Feb. 1 at 48 Seventh street.

The first of the formal hours of the winter season will be given this evening at Port Douglas. The receiving party will consist of Colonel and Mrs. Benjamin C. Lockwood, Captain and Mrs. John W. Straut and Lieutenant and Mrs. W. L. Ford.

Invitations were issued yesterday for a lecture recital to be given next Monday evening by Mrs. Martha Royle King and some of her pupils at her studio, 255 Commercial club building. The programme will consist of sketches of the lives of a few American women composers and groups of their songs.

Thomas Radcliffe will leave tonight for Boise, Ida., having been engaged to make specifications and superintend the erection of a modern pipe organ for the First Presbyterian church, and which he will dedicate when finished.

Mrs. Melvin H. Sowles entertained at a small and informal luncheon yesterday in compliment to Miss Coral Wilcox of Spokane. Covers were laid for six, and the decorations were all in red. Following the affair Mrs. Fred Thompson rendered a fine musical programme.

The Ladies' Literary club will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A. O. Trengan will read a paper on "The Music of Public Buildings." The music will be furnished by Miss Edna Dwyer and Claude J. Newton, and Mrs. Elizabeth H. Coray will give some Scotch humor.

Mrs. P. J. Quayle, who has spent the past week in the city, left last evening for her home in Kemmerer.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Colbath entertained a few friends at a dinner Wednesday evening at their apartments in the Judd flats.

Mrs. Allen T. Sanford entertained a few friends informally at a Kensington yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. M. B. Whitney has returned from Provo, where she has spent the past few days.

SMALL STEALINGS.

Adjutant General of Indiana Forced to Resign.
Indianapolis, Dec. 7.—John R. Ward, adjutant general of Indiana, resigned today on the demand of Governor Hanft.

An investigating committee claims that there is a shortage of $56,75, which, it is alleged, was secured by General Ward by peddling the totals of his requisitions for money or by the sale of four companies of the Indiana National guard and on warrants for supplies for the troops.

General Ward was adjutant of the One Hundred and Sixty-first Indiana regiment in the Spanish-American war, of which regiment former Governor Durbey was colonel. The alleged shortage discovered extends back to December, 1898.

Follow Each New Discovery of Science.

The great strides that medical science has made in the last few years is due to the germ theory. When the germ of a disease has been discovered, the doctors have not been slow in finding a drug to kill it. In a few years it will be rare to find a head-headed man or woman. The falling out of hair is due to a dandruff germ and now it has been discovered how to kill this germ. The remedy used is called Neuchair's Herpicide. Its success has been marvelous. Not a failure has been so far reported. It is also a delightful hair dressing free from all sticky substances. Try it and be convinced of its actual merit. Sold by leading druggists.
